County 4-Hers Have Invitation To Carroll County Field Day

The Cold River 4-H Club of North Chatham, N. H., is inviting all of the rural folks in the sections of Carroll, Oxford, and Coos Counties, within easy access of North Chatham, N. H., to be their guests at a mid-summer field day on August 11. Governor Adams of New Hampshire has accepted the invitation to come and to speak. The occasion will also be the Chatham Old Home Day and the program will take place at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Lester G. Evans, leaders of the Cold River 4-H Club.

A program has been planned for young and old and the day will be filled with events that you will not want to miss. Besides Governor Adams, Dean Robert F. Chandler of the Agricultural College of the University of New Hampshire, will also speak. There will be a forestry tour to the Chandler farm where a selective cutting timber demonstration is being carried on. Miss Anna Geors, new Carroll County Home Demonstration Agent, will give a demonstration of Preparing Foods for Freezing. The New Hampshire State Forestry Department will have an exhibit of a fire finder and Robert Smith from the department will demonstrate the finder and will radio contact with the men in the fire towers on nearby mountains. The U. S. Forest Service will have exhibits, will demonstrate the use of the pumper that is kept at North Chatham, and with the New Hampshire department will put on a demonstration of fire line building.

The 4-H club members from nearby communities will put on a series of agricultural and home economics demonstrations that they have prepared for county and state competition. The farm machinery dealers throughout the area are planning to have exhibits and demonstrations and tractor operators are invited to take part in a tractor rodeo competition. The U. S. Soil Conservation Service is planning to put on a demonstration of farm improvement practices. Horsehoe pitchers are invited to come and determine the championship pitchers of the area. And everybody hopes that the Chatham Garden Club will take the occasion to hold a flower show. There will be field day events for the children.

The Cold River 4-H Club plans to sell refreshments so that it will not even be necessary to pack a lunch to take. There is excellent space for parking and the event will take place on Route 116, which is the tarred road through Evans Notch. Better save Thursday, Aug. 11, to go to this gathering and spend the day.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Daily Life of Every Individual—National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

In one of his recent columns, Walter Lippman, who is perhaps the best of the publicists, asked why all our ambitious and costly plans for world rehabilitation have fallen so short of expectations. He put it this way: "Beginning with the world bank and monetary fund, which were followed by the British and the French loans, which were followed by the Marshall Plan, we have tried to reconstruct a world economy in which our partners and friends could earn their way toward a rising standard of life. . . . But we have not succeeded, and once again the economic relations of Europe and North America are at a crisis."

Mr. Lippman's explanation for this tragic failure is an interesting one. He said, "The crux of the problem and the heart of the crisis is that Europe must buy absolute necessities from us whereas there is almost nothing that we have to buy from Europe."

In other words, the United States, even as it has become the dominant Western power, has attained an unprecedented degree of self-sufficiency. With few exceptions, we can produce and manufacture within our own borders everything that we need to maintain and to improve our standard of living, and we are capable of doing this for a larger population than we have now. In Mr. Lippman's view, this situation is "in itself a result of war. He observes that the story is told again of how war has exhausted the wealth and energy of Europe. But the other side of the story is far less well known. To quote him again, "It is how the wars have affected the United States, causing by forced draught an increase not only in American productivity but also in American self-sufficiency. . . . Wars in Europe have compelled this country to save itself and to save Europe, including Russia, by developing its own industrial and agricultural production to a point where it is largely self-sufficient with great surpluses in addition."

The present British dollar crisis, which has led the government to drastically curtail buying from this country, is in point. It certainly seems true that some of the policies and practices of the socialists is now at the helm in England have speeded up the trouble, and year or two earlier than might have been the case otherwise. However, the fact that we no longer need to buy British goods in any great quantity dominates the whole picture. She had hoped for a great export trade with us which has not materialized. If she cannot sell, she cannot long buy, for the dollars which go out are not being replaced. No one has yet found a solution to this great problem. It shows how rocky and tortuous we are finding the road to world peace and stability.

OXFORD COUNTY MINERAL AND GEM ASSOCIATION
The next meeting of the Oxford County Mineral and Gem Association will be held at the home of James Faulkner, 40 South Main St., Hildonville, August 1.
DOUGLAS FOSDICK
Douglas Fosdick, former publisher of the Rumford Falls Times, died Monday night at the Central Maine General Hospital where he had been a patient 10 days with heart disease. He was born in Somerville, Mass., April 26, 1899, the son of Herman and Una Colquhoun Fosdick. He was graduated from Edward Little High School, Hebron Academy and Bowdoin College. Before becoming publisher of the Times in 1940 he had been employed by the Portland Evening News, Associated Press, as secretary to Senator Wallace White, and was associated with the Tracy-Kent, Inc., a New York advertising agency. Last November he, with L. Norton Payson of Portland, founded Fosdick, Payson & Co., Inc., an advertising agency with Auburn and Portland offices.

Nelson and Larry Smith are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lester Johnson at Auburn.

Mrs. Vitella Crosby celebrated her 88th birthday July 24 at her home in Skillingston. Among callers on that day she entertained Mrs. Carter, Colebrook; Miss Vitella Haley, Errol; Miss Gwendolin Stearns, Karl Stearns, Mrs. Helen Sprague, Miss Henrietta Swain, Mrs. Jane Trefothern, all of Bethel; and Archie Mann, Rumford.

LUCAS - MOORE

At four o'clock on the afternoon of July 23 the wedding of Barbara Graham Moore and Robert Edwin Lucas was solemnized at the home of Mrs. Nahum Moore on Church Street. The simple decorations of white sweet peas, white gladioli and baby's breath throughout the house were very effective.

Before the ceremony Miss Carolyn Mingo of Fairfield, with Mrs. Warren Abbott at the piano, sang "Because."

Miss Hilda Nelhoff of Waterville was bridesmaid. She wore a gown of cyclamen taffeta under net and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas and dyed stephanotis with a halo of the same.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Moore and the late Nahum P. Moore of Bethel wore a gown of white goddess lace over satin. Her veil was of illusion net with a harmonizing coronet. She carried orchid and white sweet peas and white stephanotis. She was given in marriage by her uncle, Wilder Kimball, Jr., of Rumford Center.

The groom was attended by his cousin, Raymond Warner, Jr., of Waterville, Conn. Rev. William Penner performed the double ring ceremony.

At the reception before the fireplace in the living room the wedding party greeted many neighbors, friends and relatives.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Wilder Kimball Jr., Mrs. Gordon Ritter, Mrs. Carleton Champe, and Miss Elizabeth Baker. Miss Evaline Kimball of Rumford Center, aunt of Mrs. Lucas, cut and served the bride's cake. Miss Gay Kimball of Rumford Center was in charge of the guest book.

The going away outfit of the bride was a yellow wool crepe with an orchid corsage and brown accessories. The wedding trip will include visits in the White Mountains.

Mr. Lucas is employed at the Rumford Falls Times. They will be at home in a Main Street apartment after August 1.

Out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Lucas, Wilder Kimball, Miss Evaline Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Kimball Jr., Gay and David Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. Henry O. French, Mrs. Fred Coffin, Mrs. Elvira Coffin, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Foster, Judy and Douglas Foster, Mr. and Mrs. William Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hoyt, Rumford Center; Mr. and Mrs. John Welch, Mr. and Mrs. John MacGregor, Miss Susan Martin, Mrs. Jack Warren, Mrs. Walter Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Abbott, Charles, Walter, Wilder Abbott, Rumford; Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Stevens, Mexico; Mrs. Hershel Holt, Dixfield; Mr. and Mrs. Guyeth Smith, Mrs. Ernest Woodman, Mrs. M. B. Stevens, Miss Stella M. Thomas, Miss Lucille McIntock, Miss Carolyn Mingo, Fairfield; Raymond A. Warner, Norma J. Warner, June Warner, Raymond A. Warner Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Roy French, Mrs. Frank Barber, Mrs. George E. Evans, Mrs. Dexter Clark, Miss Jane Clark, Miss Jennie Lucas, Waterville, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Champe, Nancy and Jane Champe, New York; Miss Thelma Watson, Bangor; Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Crane, Miss Janice Crane, Orono; Billy French, Hartford, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones, Portland; Mrs. Gordon Ritter, Carol, Gordon, Sandy and Lucy Ritter, Columbus, Indiana.

State Dairy Show Coming To Windsor August 6

The largest and best State 4-H Dairy Show in Maine and one of the best State Dairy Type and Production Shows formerly the Highville Show will be held at Windsor Fair Grounds on Saturday, Aug. 6. The 4-H boys and girls and the adult dairymen will take part in the first combined State Dairy Show, showing about 600 head of prize Ayrshires, Brown Swisses, Guernseys, Holsteins, Jerseys, and Milking Shorthorns. Outstanding cattle judges will classify the animals. The Maine Bankers Association will give purchased calves to four deserving 4-H club members. The show, which will start at 10:30 a. m., is expected to attract a large crowd. Everyone's welcome.

CIRCULAR ISSUED ON "QUALITY IN BLUEBERRIES"

Just off the presses at the University of Maine is Maine Extension Circular 258, "Quality in Blueberries." The leaflet tells why quality is important in blueberries, what quality is, and how growers and canners can improve it. Free copies may be obtained from county agents or by writing the Agricultural Service, University of Maine, Orono.

THIRD WEEK OF SWIMMING INSTRUCTION BRINGS FORTH LARGEST ATTENDANCE—249

The third week Ski Club—Red Cross swimming classes developed the largest attendance so far with 249 participating. The first week 194 and the second had 236. The swimmers who showed the most marked improvement and won the Citizen prizes of Rollit convertible ball point pens were Henry Bowers and Frank Flint. A larger number of prizes will be awarded at the end of the course.

The splendid cooperation of the parents and others interested in having the children ready and in operating the beach patrol, and in forming the adult class adds immensely to this worthwhile project.

The float will be tried again with more anchors, new kick boards have been donated, and it is hoped the use of the equipment will be enjoyed.

If there are any swimmers over 18 (men or women) who would like further training, including lifesaving, in classes from about 4:30 to 5:30 p. m., please advise Miss Stallwood, or Mr. Ames as soon as possible before August 1. A sufficient number would warrant consideration of such an arrangement.

BEACH PATROL DUTY FOR WEEK OF AUGUST 1

Those on beach patrol duty next week will be: Monday morning, one from Locke Mills, Edith Rowe, after noon, Marguerite Sumner, Alice Bennett. Tuesday morning, Betty Blake, Blanche Bennett; afternoon, one from West Bethel, Ruth Conner. Wednesday morning, June Scothorne, Eva Perry; afternoon, one from Locke Mills, June Grieg. Thursday morning, Marie Swan, Luella Sclarrana; afternoon, one from West Bethel, Esther Brown. Friday morning, one from Locke Mills, Alma Young; afternoon, Florence Emery, Jane Kneeland.

VACATION BUSINESS UP—EXPECT DECLINE

The June vacation business summary indicates that New England vacation lodging places entertained about seven per cent more guests this June than in June 1948. Guests spent about four per cent more money at these lodging places in June 1949 than in the same month last year.

Resort hotels received only about one per cent greater receipts from two per cent more guests this June than in June a year ago. The tourist lodging places (tourist home and cabin groups) received almost 17 per cent more money from 12 per cent more guests. Comparisons with June a year ago are favorable in 1949 because poor weather last year lowered the comparative base.

The vacation lodging places which are open in June provide space for 5.6 million guest-nights of occupancy. In June 1949 they sold about 1.4 million guest-nights, or about 25 per cent of their available space. The resort hotels used 29 per cent of their available capacity for 2.4 million guest-nights. Tourist lodging places accommodated about 700,000 over-night guests of a possible 3.2 million.

July and August Advance Reservations

Advance reservations for July on July 1 at resort hotels were three per cent above those held on the same date last year. July reservations held by tourist lodging places were almost four per cent greater than on July 1 a year ago. The increase in reservations seems to indicate that vacation business will be strong through July.

Vacation business in August is still open to question. In both 1947 and in 1948 vacation business took a sharp downward turn on about August 15. Advance reservations for August seem to indicate that a similar and possibly larger decline may take place this year. Advance reservations for August held by resort hotels were about five per cent below those held on July 1, 1948, and August advance reservations at tourist lodging places were about four per cent below those held on July 1 a year ago.

Boys' and Girls' Camps

Private boys' and girls' camps opened the season with about 66 per cent of their available capacity filled. This enrollment was two per cent better than that of a year ago and almost three per cent better than the large 1947 enrollment.

A Test for Bad Laws

From here on out, if America is to remain the number one land of liberty and freedom and prosperity, we are going to have to keep a sharp eye for bad legislation. We're going to have to analyze everything that comes up with this thought in mind: Will it help or hinder America in the task of preserving the liberties and opportunities that are responsible for our high wages and comparative prosperity. It would be better to be a little suspicious and keep freedom, than be careless and lose it.

In short, the price of freedom is still vigilance. I do not say we should fear progress. The American people have not been afraid of change, and progress has been our lot for many years. However, to buy everything that comes up merely because it seems new to us, might mean accepting the suzerainty of dictatorship. There's no progress in that. We need to examine each proposition, no matter how wonderful it may seem, to find out where it will take us.

Little at a Time
Our founding fathers came to these shores to escape some of the very things we are heading into. Little by little we have come to adopt many policies that make the American Way of Life more and more insecure. Just one little law may not turn a republic into a dictatorship of some kind. But a lot of laws together can. That is why it is possible for us to become exactly what we don't want to be, and hardly be aware it is happening.

Most of us look with dismay at what is happening to Britain under nationalization, or government management, of such basic industries as the railroads and coal mines. We think: oh, well, it could never happen over here. But it has happened. It is happening! Right in America, our railroads already burdened with red-tape and taxed almost to the breaking point, the government bureaucracy is eyeing the railroads further.

Control in Disguise

I refer to a harmless looking bill now before Congress (S. 238 in the Senate and H.R. 378 in the House) designed, it is said, "to promote the public safety." It wants to give power to the Interstate Commerce Commission to require any railroad "to establish rules, regulations, and practices with respect to operation of trains intended to promote safety." Sounds harmless. Safety is a good cause. The railroads have a fine safety record. Government control of safety is obviously uncalled for. Here's the joker: this bill would give a government bureau almost complete authority over operation of the railroads. Actually, the scope of it is so broad, and the language so vague, that it could give the government authority to rule everything about the roads. This would be a step toward government control, and finally, ownership.

Danger to America

This law, like many others, is urged as "in the public interest." Yet, all the way through, it is to the public's detriment. Very few of the bill could do would be to substitute a set of rules devised not by railroads, but by a government agency, for the know-how and excellent record of expert management men on the job. This would be a gross waste of money, of manpower, of efficiency. It could mean much featherbedding of labor, in the name of safety.

But that would be the least harm it could do. Here is an innocent-looking bill, but this type of legislation must be shunned like the plague. Do we want government management? Do we want federal regulation in every activity of our lives? When the complete control

Dale Carnegie

Author of
"HOW TO WIN FRIENDS and INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

HAVE YOU ENTHUSIASM for what you are doing? No? Then you'd better get into another line. Either make a change or do something about developing enthusiasm for your work. You may think that's not possible, but in nine out of ten cases there is something about a man's work over which he can enthuse.

D. Carnegie

When Walter P. Chrysler was asked to give what he considered the secret of a man's success, he listed various qualities, such as ability, capacity and energy. "But," he added, "the real secret to real success is enthusiasm."

Then he went on to say that if a man had enthusiasm for his work, he was excited over it, that if he once became excited about it, he enthused others and the company got business.

Yes, enthusiasm is by far the highest paid quality on earth, probably because it is the rarest — yet it is one of the most contagious. I have seen an enthusiastic head of a department fire his workers with so much enthusiasm that they preferred to stay and work overtime with him.

Enthusiasm is not merely an outward expression. It works from within. Enthusiasm is born of a genuine liking for some phase of what you are doing. You may even dislike another phase of your work, and yet reach great success, if you but have enthusiasm for the main issue. It's a good deal like a youngster learning to like his vegetables, because he knows if he doesn't eat them, dessert will be denied him. He eats vegetables tolerantly, decides he likes some better than others, then, presto, he does actually like them.

How can you make yourself become enthusiastic? By telling yourself what you like about what you are doing, and pass-on quickly from the part you don't like to the part you do like. Then act enthusiastically; tell someone about it; let them know why it interests you. Try this formula; see if you don't develop some degree of enthusiasm in a few days. I'd be willing to bet on it.

THIS WEEK IN Washington

DEBATE ON THE Atlantic pact against which most opposition has crumbled, attempt by 61 senators to pass the responsibility of cutting appropriations on to the president, conference hearings on the housing bill passed by both houses and almost a score of congressional investigations occupy the public eye and congressional action this week.

Despite the fact that Congress is far behind on its "must" legislation, the attention of scores of members is being taken up in at least 16 full-scale investigations or probes and about that many more probes have been authorized.

The top probes underway while needed legislation languishes in committees and pigeonholes include: atomic energy, airline finances, air force procurement, un-American activities, army promotions, dismissal of federal employees, the Malmady massacre, the fate and oil situation, operations of the economic cooperation administration, gas and oil prices, the lending policies of the reconstruction finance corporation, sales at army PX's and navy ship stores, the shootings of the Reuther brothers in Detroit, commercial fishing and the U.S. merchant marine, "undemocratic union practices and terrorism in Alabama."

In addition to these probes, Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada and Congressman Emanuel Celler, who heads senate and house judiciary committees respectively, are teaming up on a full-fledged probe of the insurance business, particularly in insurance investments. The probe of the nearly 1000 registered lobbyists is another likely to be both extensive and expensive. Some advocates of the probe indicate that only about one-fourth of the money spent for lobbying is reported and that many lobbyists are getting around the law by posing as bona fide public relations and education experts.

Then there is the investigation of monopolies to determine whether or not our 60-year-old anti-trust laws are out-moded or just not enforced, since no one ever has been sent to jail for criminal violation of these laws.

One probe which has educators literally tearing their hair is that in which the house un-American activities committee is setting itself up as censor for school books. The probe centers around whether or not communism is being presented in a favorable light in school text books and is being made, actually over the protest of a majority of the committee itself. At least five members of the nine-man committee have publicly criticized such a probe.

These members are Representatives John McSwain of Ohio; Morgan Moulder of Missouri; Richard Nixon of California; Francis Case of South Dakota and Harold Velde of Illinois. Despite the majority protest, Chairman John Wood of Georgia has sent out letters of inquiry to boards of education throughout the country and says that the response of the educational groups is "very good."

Currently the probe of the charges of Senator Hickenlooper of Iowa of "incredible mismanagement" at the hands of chairman David Lilienthal and the other four members of the atomic energy commission is holding the public interest. Local observers here point out that how the commission can manage the vast enterprises of the government atomic energy operations and still be here in Washington for weeks at a time attending probe hearings, attending appropriations hearings and other congressional inquiry is problematical.

For instance the members of the commission have been in constant attendance here since May 2 and it appears the hearings will continue for some weeks.

LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

For today's seminar, we will delve into "money." Most folks know 2 bits or 4 bits or a 5 buck or even a 20 buck piece of folding dinero but one billion or 2 billion, nobody savies. And the ones who carry least are our boys down there in old Contusionville-on-the-River, as a fellow there in Bellaire, Ohio writes me and calls the place. Without batting an eye they vote 20 or 30 million for another power-house and dam on Hungry Cow Creek but if their own sweet little woman was saying she needed a extra 20 bucks for a new fall skimmer, she would not have such smooth and easy sailing.

Some Govt. lads are now proposing 15 billion for a "job program." If jobs are scarce in Kansas City and there is a surplus of jobs in Cape Cod, these lads would up and move the workers to Cape Cod. If the Missouri workers never saw a codfish, they could run over to Harvard or some place and brush up on fish.

An average city of 50,000 is assessed at 80 million to keep the Govt. in just its regular spending money—40 billion a year—2 complete cities of 50,000 would need be sold lock, stock and barrel per day — per day that is. And that, slaters and brothers is what 40 billion looks like.

Yours with the low down,
JO SERVA

Maine farm homes are no safer than those in the rest of the Nation. In the United States, 36,000 people died from accidents and 2,000,000 more were injured at home for which figures are available.

I REMEMBER...

By THE OLD-TIMERS

From Louise Perry of Manhattan Beach, Calif.: "I remember when my sister, Margaret, and I walked five miles to a little red school-house, and in winter we wore long black stockings mother had made out of wool."

From Mrs. Mary Stewart of Chicago: "I remember when traveling salesmen were called 'drummers.' They carried carpet bag atchels, and were dressed in loud attire and girls were warned by their elders not to speak to such men. In small towns they were always looked upon as a menace."

From Anonymous: "I remember when skirts were as much as six yards around the bottom, lined with saletia interlined near the bottom with stiff material and finished with a bias binding of velvet at the bottom."

From Gertrude Richmond of Idaho, Calif.: "I remember when girls wore rats in their hair and the bigger the rat the more fashionable you were. How it would make your hair puff out in front to give you that 'graceful look.' Sometimes, especially in hot weather, your head would feel like a balloon and would look like one, too — but that was the style! That's why so many of 'us girls' looked alike 50 years ago."

From E. E. Meredith of Fairmont, W. Va.: "I remember when bed-spreads were called counterpane."

UNGUARDED REAR... Nancy Anheuser, Milwaukee, retreating from attack by the heat, pecks around corner to make sure no one's coming, only to be beset at her most vulnerable point by a Samaritan. Her strategy would hardly be deemed "correct" in military circles.

All Good Is Ours

THE belief that good belongs to some individuals and not to others is not in accord with Bible teaching, and is refuted by the spiritual truth that every individual has all good by reason of man's reflection of and likeness to God, good, the parent Mind. "So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him" (Genesis 1:27).

The Bible also tells us that God is infinite, All-in-all. The infinite is obviously indivisible, because it could not be divided or apportioned without losing its character and nature. Therefore God, good, is indivisible and His image and likeness, man, reflects His indivisibility in eternal individuality. Indeed, the root meaning of the word "individual" is "not divisible."

Good is as indivisible and as universally available as the multiplication table. We can all use the multiplication table without exhausting or diminishing it in any respect and without depriving anyone else of its full use. The underlying mistake of both the younger son and the elder brother in Jesus' parable of the prodigal was a belief in the divisibility of good. Both demanded what they thought of as their portion. Each had to learn the lesson contained in the gracious benediction (Luke 15:31), "Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine."

In her definition of man in the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, writes (p. 476): "Man is idea, the image of Love; he is not physique. He is the compound idea of God, including all right ideas." Man, therefore, includes the right idea of work, home, companionship, health, supply, security, and so forth. Spiritually speaking, he does not have to get a job or find a home, for example, since he is always at one with the source of all good. . . .

All spiritual truths are practical. The understanding of the ever-presence of God, good, and His spiritual ideas is externalized in the right evidence of work, home, health, happiness, or whatever the need may be. It is important to reject the argument that we must get something outside ourselves in order to have enough. We must stop believing that we are separated from good by various circumstantial human conditions and circumstances. By holding steadfastly to the spiritual fact that man already possesses abundant good by reason of his reflection of God, we shall see harmony and satisfaction made manifest in our human experience.

Poverty, meanness, limitation, restriction, frustration, are no part of indivisible and infinite good. We do not have to accept these beliefs or bow down to them. Never should we think that God has sent them to us or that it is His will that we suffer from them. Abundant good is natural and normal, and we should and can expect it. . . .

The Bible is emphatic that righteousness, or right thinking, leads to countless blessings. Christ Jesus said (Matthew 6:33-34): "Take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Wherewithal shall we be clothed? . . . for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

In reality there is no lack of good. Man already possesses all good. "Son, . . . all that I have is thine" expresses the universal truth of man's inseparability from good. . . . —The Christian Science Monitor.

Psalms of Trust
Lesson for July 31: Psalms 34: 3-8; 37:3-6; 46:1-3.

Memory Selection: Psalms 91:2. A number of the Psalms are songs of trust in the Lord, and as such they touch the chords in every heart. In Psalms 34 the author rejoices in the fact that God delivers those who put their trust in Him. Out of his own experience in being heard of God and being saved from all his troubles, the author invites all to test God's goodness for themselves.

But wicked men cannot look for large blessings from God, for they are not prepared to receive them. A man must trust in the Lord and do good if he would gain the greatest blessings. "Commit thy way unto the Lord." The whole of life, with all its plans and purposes, must be given wholly unto God. If a man would know "justice as the noonday."

In Psalms 46 the singer of Israel rejoices that God is "a refuge and strength" at all times. We need not fear through all the changes about us—changes symbolized in the cataclysms of nature. It should strengthen the heart at this time, when there is so much of unrest over the world, need and hunger and suffering, fear of future wars, and the ever-present dread of something to befall the nations and disturb the peace of men, that through faith we need not fear.

Whatever your personal need may be, God is able and ready to help you when you come to Him aright. Learn to trust God for the help you need. That is surely a great lesson to be learned—peace and wellbeing depend upon it.

Unlocking Your Personality

by Dr. Norman Vincent Peale

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peale is minister of historic Marble Collegiate Church on Fifth Avenue, New York City; and author of the current best-seller, "A Guide to Confident Living.")

A young businessman of my acquaintance has a particularly attractive personality. He is filled with vitality and energy and takes a rare delight in life. He has a marked power over people. His personality is one that commands itself to everyone. In fact, there is such a light and vibrancy about him that it is difficult to describe him. I mentioned him in speaking to a former college classmate of his. He listened, smiled and said, "Everything you say is true, but you should have seen him in his college days. He was dull, inert, lifeless, unattractive, even sullen. The class prophet who undertook to predict the future of each of the members of the class, stated that the gentleman in question was least likely of all the members of his class to succeed in life.

"What happened to him," I asked, "to cause such a remarkable change?"

"He got his personality unlocked, I guess that is the answer." Of course, that is always the answer to every human life. Here we come upon both the tragedy and romance of human nature. It is a sad fact that some people live throughout their entire lifetimes without ever fully having their personalities unlocked. Potentially they are great souls but they never attain it. Oliver Wendell Holmes reminds us that many men live and die with all their music still within them.

Some time ago I was taking a walk in Boston and once again passed the glorious statue of Abraham Lincoln with the slave boy looking up at him. On the boy's wrist were the shackles of slavery and Lincoln was striking them from his wrist. That is one of the reasons why Abraham Lincoln will ever be enshrined in the imagination and love of mankind. He set people free. And that is what Jesus Christ does. He sets you free from something that is more binding than any physical yoke. He unshackles the moral, spiritual, psychological which people put around themselves. He unlocks personalities.

How does He do it? For example how can your personality be unlocked? Well, first, you have to be free from the entanglement of your thoughts. Because of the law of averages, I feel certain that many readers of this newspaper are prisoners of their thoughts. They have obsessions, quills, false ideas, notions, prejudices, resentments, temptations, guilts, and these things become tangled in such an impenetrable mass that the personality is held and squeezed, with no opportunity to be released. This happens to even the most highly educated people. Perhaps it happens more often to them because they are highly organized, sensible, and they ought to know better.

The personalities of some people get locked up because they have not lived right, they have not lived a moral, righteous Christian life. The Bible constantly tells you to be have yourself, not to sin, not to cheat, or lie or be lustful, not to commit thievery, dishonesty, or adultery. Why? Why does it say

THE TWAIN MEETS . . . East meets west and finds a home. Ann, six-year-old Chinese orphan gets acquainted with the family of Frank Chisari, ex-GI from New York, who saved her life four years ago while serving in Kunming, China. Chisari nursed Ann back to health in the fuselage of a C-47 he had fixed up as a room and workshop after he found her bleeding from a slash on her cheek and throat. He saved money for four years to bring her to America and will adopt her. Ann and Chisari are fourth and fifth from left.

these things? Because when an individual does these things he destroys himself. There has been a pernicious doctrine around that doing these things releases an individual. Release, nothing! All they do is to tie up the individual. A distinguished doctor has made the following statement: "The worst physical infection can't compare with the way sin and guilt eat into a man. Nervous difficulties are responsible for the diseases and disabilities which cause more than half of the average physician's patients to seek professional advice. In many cases of sin, the patient's sense of guilt causes his will to fail, making impotent every usual physical means for curing his illness. Such an illness may be diabetes, hay fever, peptic ulcer, one type of goiter, asthma, personality."

The marvelous experience of this young physician can be duplicated by anyone who invites Jesus Christ to unlock the door of the prison that incarcerates his soul and his personality.

It happened this A.M....at 2:37

THIS MORNING a muffled gasp broke a tense expectant silence. Then a tiny cry let it be known that all was well. And a mere thimble-full of foot planted its first imprint in this wide and wondrous world.

Thus came another little traveler from nowhere to here—one of more than 10,000 who arrive in America every day.

We want him to know that here he is not classed by birth—either as lordly or lowly.

—that here we believe all men are created equal.
—that everyone is endowed by his Creator with unalienable rights.

—that the measure of a man lies in his abilities and character.
So let each one of us, individually, make it a personal rule to:

1. ACCEPT...or reject...people on their individual worth.
2. DON'T LISTEN to, or spread, rumors against a race, or a religion.
3. SPEAK UP, wherever we are, against prejudice, and work for understanding.

Remember—THAT'S BEING AN AMERICAN

SHOCK

(A Short Story)
By RICHARD HILL WILKINSON

IT SEEMED incredible to Jock that in this city of opulence and opportunity he could be hungry and broke and out of a job. Standing disconsolately on the corner of Cahunga and Hollywood boulevards he contemplated his predicament with bitterness and remorse. He didn't belong here and he would have given anything not to be here. Gloomily he projected his mind 5000 miles back over the mountains and plains to the snug little mid-western town of Thompsonville. That's where he wanted to be.

He'd been a sucker to listen to the movie agent. He should have had sense enough to know that Noel Preston wasn't a movie agent at all, but a racketeer who hopped from small town to small town, witnessing amateur theatrical company performances and assuring the leading characters that there was a future for them in Hollywood.

Preston had given him a letter to an alleged office in Hollywood, in-

The roadster's bumper brushed his trouser leg, which was the last thing he knew before his head thumped against the pavement.

Structuring him to present it to a Mr. Gleason. Before a week had passed, Mr. Gleason would have him working for one of the major studios. The agent's fee, payable in advance, Jock had given to Preston out of his savings. The remainder of his savings went for train fare. Of course there hadn't been any office or any Mr. Gleason. Jock had tried the studios himself, but it didn't take him long to discover he didn't have a chance.

Thinking about it, he reflected that it would take him a long time to save up for the garage he wanted to buy. All his surplus was gone. And then there was Adele to consider. Adele had faith in him. Even when he'd been sucker enough to go to Hollywood, she had believed in him, though he knew she wished he'd been satisfied to stay home. He wondered if now she'd wait till he had saved enough to buy the garage.

He stepped off the curb, heading west on Hollywood boulevard, just as the lights changed. At this exact moment a long, black roadster came around the corner, barely moving. Jock heard its horn, and started to retreat. His heel caught on something and he fell backwards. The roadster's bumper brushed his trouser leg, which was the last thing he knew before his head thumped against the pavement.

Seconds later Jock opened his eyes. He was lying on the sidewalk, and there were a lot of people around. He heard a siren, followed by sharp commands. "Break! Gang-way! Break away, there!"

He blinked. There hadn't been time to protest. And now there was no one around to protest to. He lay still, conscious of the movement of the ambulance, thinking that he might as well let them take him to the hospital. Perhaps he'd get a meal out of it.

Fifteen minutes later he was deposited on a leather couch in what appeared to be a small anteroom. A nurse hovered about. Masculine voices came from behind a door directly opposite. Presently the door opened and a man with a briefcase came in. He nodded to the nurse and the nurse went out. The man came and looked at Jock.

"Well," he said, "you haven't got much of a case. I happened to be in the car. I'm Lannie Holtham's lawyer."

Jock blinked and said nothing. The man went on:

"You couldn't prove a thing, but publicity's bad for a star as big as Holtham. Besides, there's reporters outside." He sat down and began unstrapping his briefcase. "That's the story, so don't try to tell me different. Or don't hand me that stuff about how a star has to keep up a front in Hollywood and won't stand for lawsuits. A lawsuit wouldn't net you a dime, because you couldn't prove a thing. Now get this: We'll settle for $10,000 out of court and not a cent more. All you got to do is sign this paper and keep your trap shut when the reporters come in."

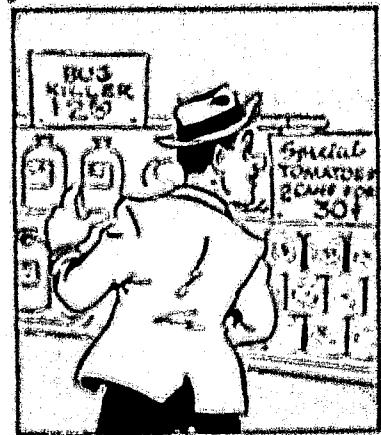

Jock opened his mouth and closed it, like a fish out of water. No sound escaped his lips. The lawyer stood up. "Twelve thousand and that's the limit. Speak up, I'm in a hurry."

Jock swallowed. By trying tremendously hard he managed to say, "O. K."

Minutes later the doctor finished his examination. "Suffering from shock. We'd better keep him here a few days. Put him in ward 10. He doesn't look to me like a man who could pay for even a semi-private."

Successful Parenthood

BY MRS. CATHERINE CONRAD EDWARDS

Associate Editor, Parents' Magazine

WHEN LITTLE GIRLS play with their dolls at housekeeping they are always elaborately polite with each other. It is "Mrs." this and "Mrs." that, with "How is your baby today?" and clucks of sympathy. If the doll baby is supposed to be ailing, but have you noticed how rude they often are to their dolls? "You're a bad, bad baby," they will say, with a shake or a spank.

Doesn't this reflect the double standard of courtesy parents often have for their own grown-up friends and their children? If you meet a friend in the grocery market and she has obviously come in a hurry and not waited to smooth her hair and put on fresh lipstick, you don't say, "My, you look a sight this morning!" But if one of your children should dash up to you in the store, where he may have spied you on his way home from school, aren't you apt to exclaim, "How did you get your shirt so dirty — and for goodness sake wear the tails either in or out, not half and half."

In other words, adults try not to embarrass their friends, but they seem to feel that children haven't any feelings about being criticized in public. On the contrary, children often have a greater sense of personal dignity than adults. A friend of mine hated school for years because a kindergarten teacher, thinking the child was too warmly dressed, removed an undergarment in front of the class, a blow to the child's sense of dignity and privacy.

There are, of course, many ways in which children must be treated differently from adults. They must be protected from their own lack of wisdom in taking care of themselves physically, they must have an earlier bedtime, their dressing must be supervised to insure enough warm clothing in winter and they must be kept close at home until they are old enough to watch out for their own safety on the streets. But different handling needn't mean less courteous treatment.

What we've been saying doesn't all come under the head of "Children's Rights." It is just as much to your own advantage to be polite with your children, for that is the only way you can teach them manners.

You will have to respect their feelings. If you want spontaneous consideration from them, if you are habitually unwilling to stop your work to listen to something a child wants to tell you, you are apt to get inattention when you ask him to stop his play and "Come here this minute."

You can, however, go too far in putting the child's interests first. There are families where visitors, grandparents, parents are forced to stop in the middle of a sentence if Junior wants to say something. This can lead to lording it over his playmates, though fortunately a gang of healthy kids is quite capable of providing a counter-balance to too indulgent parents.

Nobody's Business

We are deeply indebted to a local fireman for an observation on parking habits. It seems he was peeved at some of the continued practices which made for inconvenience of motorists and others besides causing danger spots. All right parking near intersections was his sore spot. The parking in this case was on one of the narrower side streets. Since his comment, although we haven't visited his street we have noticed others which are perhaps worse. The village's parking rules are overlooked by nearly everybody. The trouble we refer to is caused only by a lack of good sense and regard for the rights of other people.

Speaking of people's rights — a visit to the Village Corporation's dump brings up something else. It was impossible to reach the river bank for some time. Then last week a lot of brush and young trees were piled on. Some people doubt if the dump was planned for such use. Abuse of this convenience has been one of the assessors' worst troubles ever since the dump has been a corporation project.

Do you believe in signs? Bethel's business places are better marked than they were at one time, this season has seen new markings for Brooks' hardware store, the Roadside Grille, the Hotel Sudbury, Nary's shop, The Citizen Office, and perhaps others. New neon signs were put up by the Specialty Shop and Boaserman's Pharmacy last year and Bethel Theatre's sign has been refinished. These all help a stranger in locating the town's offerings. The Citizen's sign is the latest — that's why we mention such things this week.

Years Ago

The store of Harold Fuller at Upton was broken into. The case was being investigated by Deputy Sheriff Frank Hunt.

The filling station of E E Bennett at Mayville was badly damaged by fire after lightning struck it. The same day lightning damaged several rooms at the home of D S Brooks on Holt Hill, but did not start fire.

A crew was putting in rock ballast on the main line past the Grand Trunk station at Bethel.

In two hours and 55 minutes early Sunday morning 58 Central Maine Power Company linemen installed new insulators between South Paris and Trap Corner.

Deaths—Mrs Gertrude Appleby, Horatio R Tuell.

20 YEARS AGO

Mr and Mrs A M Bean of East Bethel celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

The Harriette, Bethel Inn annex, was christened at a tea July 13.

Robert Foster of Newry caught a four pound trout in Sunday River which measured 24 inches.

Deaths—Mrs Clarence Hinckley, James Kiltredge.

THE LIGHT HAS NOT FAILED

Eighty-four years ago William Booth, a Methodist minister, stepped down from his pulpit to preach gospel in the slums of London.

"It is better to light a candle," he said, "than to sit and curse the darkness."

Thirteen years later, in 1879, after established churches had refused his converts membership, William Booth banded his faithful group together into The Salvation Army.

Today, The Salvation Army, with its heart to God and hand to man, has developed into a swift and immediate striking moral force in 97 countries and territories.

Its officers, 32,105 men and women, march forward into darkened dwellings of thousands and thousands of waning-spirited, mystified
